Administration

As principal through the year and president in the second semester, Fr. Carl G. Kloster S.J., has filled his roles perfectly as a man who is ready to help any student with problems and assist in any school affairs while trying to keep the school running smoothly for everyone.

Although worn down by keeping discipline and order throughout the school and voluntarily taking part in many functions, Fr. Ronald P. Windmueller S.J., nevertheless attempts to smile for the Prep News photographer.

Pondering over his Junior Religion class, Fr. William G. Steiner, S.J., also Building Superintendent, rests a few minutes in the Faculty room.

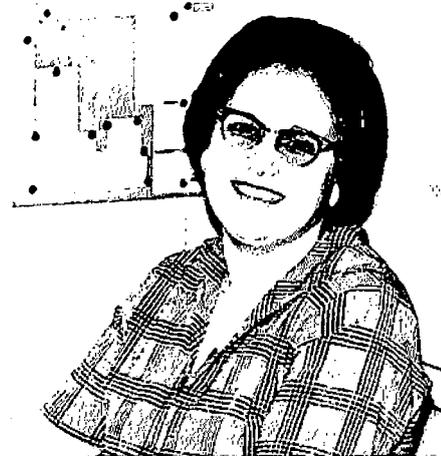

Seen at her usual place in the office, Mrs. Margaret O'Brien is an important asset to the affairs and business of the school, and always wears a smile.

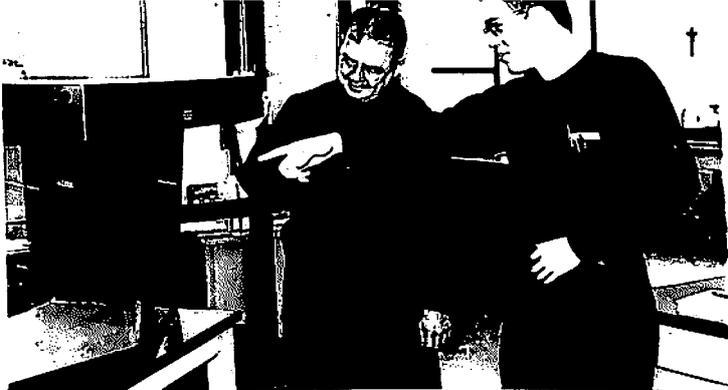

Keeping track of the school money perfectly, Mrs. Alma Brannan plays an important role as comptroller.

Controlling the switchboard most of the day, Mrs. Bess Vawter seems to always keep herself busy and helpful in daily affairs.

In the Chemistry lab on the second floor, Mr. Thomas J. Bertrand, S.J., points out the vacuum chamber to Fr. Francis G. Fahey, S.J., for the benefit of the Prep News.

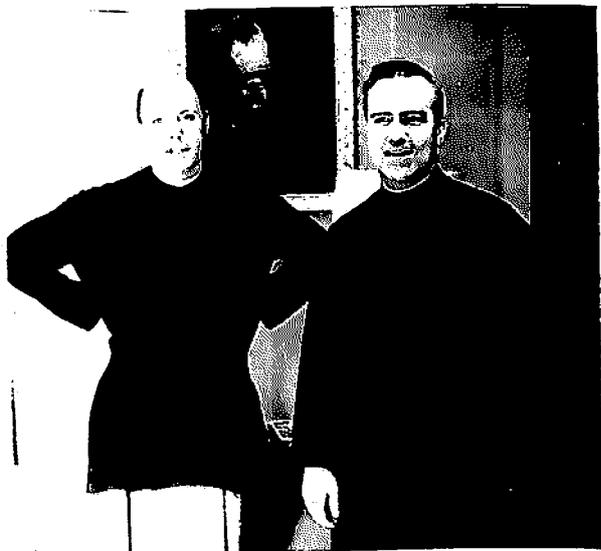

Faculty

Seen here in the Faculty room is the always smiling, good-humored Freshman Latin teacher, Fr. Thomas E. Kelly.

Two men completely dedicated to the student body are Fr. L. Eugene Martens S.J., Freshman Religion teacher and Sodality moderator and Fr. William S. Udick, S.J., Senior Religion teacher and counselor.

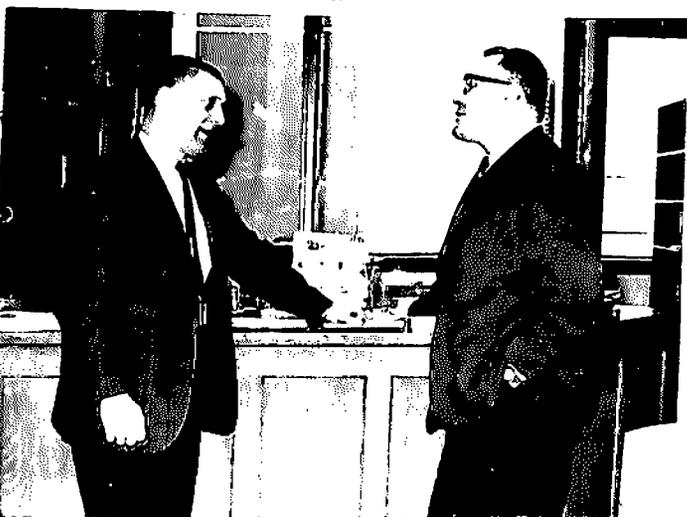

Lounging on a faculty room sofa are Mr. Timothy J. Cronin, S.J., Junior Math teacher, and Fr. Francis J. Wallace, S.J., Spanish teacher, discussing the workings of the camera which took their picture.

Discussing important matters in the general office are Mr. Harold E. Petersen, Mr. Patrick H. Crowe, and Mr. Marion A. Nickel, Math teachers.

Conversing in the Library office are Mr. Beach H. Tuckness and Mr. L. Alton Davis, P. E. and Health instructors.

Seated at his desk in his alumni office is the always smiling, friendly Junior and Senior Latin teacher, Fr. Mario T. Puricelli S.J.

Working on a film projector for the Sophomore basketball pictures is Mr. Michael J. Peterson, History and English teacher and Sophomore basketball coach.

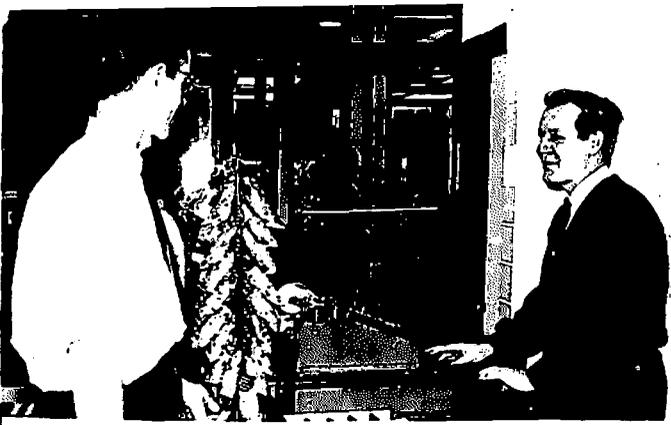

Helping out Br. Windmueller, S.J., in his many duties, and supervising intramurals, Br. Chester Gaiter, S.J. has been a smiling, helpful addition to the Rock.

Not a newcomer this year, Mr. Thomas J. Tobin, S.J., returned in the second semester to teach Sophomore Latin and moderate the Student Council.

Discussing the Spring Play Oklahoma are Fr. Richard A. Bauman, S.J., Sophomore Religion teacher and the stage director for the Spring play, and Mr. Jerome B. Stark, Freshmen and Senior History teacher and Director of all dramatics at Rockhurst.

At his usual lunch hour position behind the cash register in the cafeteria is Br. Alois H. Dorsey, S.J., talking to Br. Harold A. Teel, S.J., kitchen supervisor.

Freshman and Sophomore English teachers, Mr. Berkley Jones, S.J., and Mr. James J. White, S.J., pose with the reception room furniture.

Seen in one of their moments in the Faculty room are Fr. Gerald J. Borer, S.J., and Mr. Peppino F. Lynas, Physics teachers.

Skimming through a few magazines in the Library are Fr. William C. Morrison, S.J., and Fr. William J. Parsons, S.J., Freshman English teachers.

Discussing the correct spelling of ENGLISH are Fr. Thomas W. Curry S.J., head of the English department and Junior English teacher, Mr. Richard P. Doyle S.J., Senior English teacher, and Fr. James V. Veltrie S.J., also a Senior English teacher.

Pondering over a day's classes is the smiling Greek and History teacher, Fr. William A. Burton, S.J.

Having a few friendly words about certain students they failed are Mr. Patrick L. Cowan, Sophomore Geometry teacher, and Mr. Marc N. Murdock, Senior Probability and Calculus teacher.

Mr. Donald L. Loeffelholz, Sophomore History teacher, and Mr. William P. Kottenstette, S.J., Junior and Senior Spanish teacher sort out the letters that were given out at the basketball awards assembly in March.

Trying to get in the picture with the maps are Mr. Glenn R. Mueller S.J., Sophomore History teacher, and Mr. Francis L. McGreevy, Freshman History teacher.

Two French scholars seen here in the faculty room are Mr. Joseph M. Stehno, also Sophomore Latin teacher, and Mr. J. Leonard McCabe, S.J.

A new addition this year as the school librarian is the busy and devoted Mrs. Joan Taylor.

Instructing the school's Freshmen in the fine art of typewriting each year is Mrs. Ann Molander.

The Senior Class of 1968

On Fond Recollections: An Explanation

It is a tradition at Rockhurst (and at all other schools, I suppose) to put in an article like this about all the glowing accomplishments and high ideals attained by the graduating class. However, let us break with tradition, Class of 1968, for we certainly cannot label ourselves as traditional; and besides, I do not think we could give too long a dissertation upon all the wonderful things which we have done here at Rockhurst. Now, don't let it be said that the Class of '68 has done nothing. We have instigated many timely and worthwhile changes at Rockhurst. We have contributed much time and effort toward the success of various school projects. But as far as attaining the ideals put forth by Rockhurst, I believe we have left something to be desired. Are we a failure? Let us return to the days of yesteryear and relive our four-year so-journ here at the Rock and see.

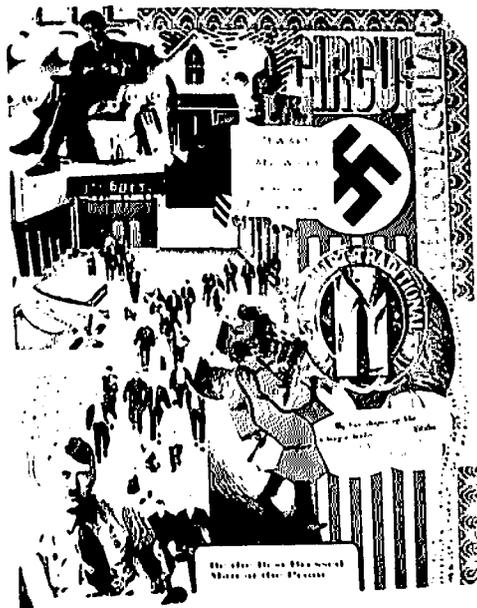

Freshman year, traditionally, was the year of confusion. We rushed aimlessly through the halls as we searched for our next class. Our books spilled all over the floor as we clumsily searched for our schedule. We wondered what the big deal was about some professional football booster club, as we listened to announcements about the N.F.L.; and we dreaded the day that we would be called to the office, not having any idea where it was. It was also the year of discovery. We discovered that the high school classes were full of noses to grindstones, shoulders to wheels, and even gooney birds. We discovered that jug, clinic, and lefts to the cheek were standard disciplinary measures. We even found out about Music Appreciation - - and we learned the numerous vital organs of a Stravinsky violin. Freshmen year also saw a big, happy-go-lucky football team that could hardly score, much less win. The first freshman float in Rockhurst history (and the last built by Rockhurst freshmen alone) was ridiculous, but it was ours. Bill O'Connor missed being the Ugliest Man in the school when one of the Sophomores brought in a $100 check from his father. Rosaries were rented outside of Father Kelly's religion class and Ko-Rec-Typ was sold by the inch. Phys. Ed. classes were drilled in the basic military formations, preparing for our future mission in Viet Nam. Our track team had rough going, despite our cast of hundreds in the distance events. And a writeup on Freshmen year would be incomplete if we failed to mention the number one hero of Rockhurst - - Shane, and his unforgettable if still baffling line, "That was the best piece of stump I ever ate."

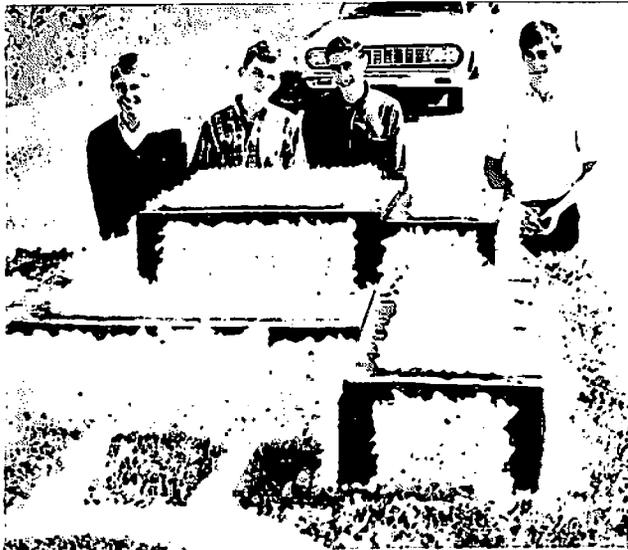

Sophomore year was more like it. We could go to dances, talk about getting our licenses pretty soon, and we weren't frosh anymore. We were more a part of Rockhurst and we showed it. Pete Santoro started his long and glorious athletic career at cornerback for the varsity football squad and from then on he was our pride, joy, and butt of half our jokes. Our class homecoming float, which S.T.A. girls thought was the queen's platform, was a glorious flop for the second year in a row. The day the basketball team was ranked number one and we had our first sit-down pep rally, our eyes were opened to a couple of terrible jinxes that were to plague us for the next two years. The usually complacent Soph class got 100% behind the paper drive in a hopeless cause. We helped put on the first, very successful spring carnival and most of us lost our shirts at the booths and on the rides. The legend of the Studs began as they swept through the white division of the FTIT. Phys. Ed. classes found a new way of developing their bodies -- isometric dandelion picking. Sophomore year ended as it had begun -- ingloriously but humorously -- and the wise fools of the class of '68 prepared for their move to the stature of upperclassmen.

As juniors we showed real potential. There were plenty of junior lettermen on the 6-2-1 football team. We tied for first in the float contest, and we took first in a close paper drive. In the first (and last) year we had a chance for the class trophy we battled the seniors down to the wire in the race for points. The juniors were the example of loyalty, cooperation and involvement whether it was in working on a dance or sticking by the basketball team when they were losing four out of their last five regular season games. We were still the carefree group we always had been though, whether we were telling Father Lynch about our latest conquests or driving teachers clear out of the Society of Jesus. We had great aspirations for senior year and we sung about them for four solid hours on the way home from Joplin. Many of these dreams were not to be realized, however, and the words of Father Kloster sum up the reason why: "What a group we have here!"

Senior year was quite different than we envisioned it to be. Our football squad straddled the line between greatness and mediocrity, only to fall back on the later side when we couldn't get over the tough hurdle which Ward placed in our way. Things dropped a little there, but they came back up for the homecoming -- one of the best weekends we have ever seen at Rockhurst. After that things just never got going too strongly. Groups started arguing about bands -- soul, rock, psychedelic. Guys began to call down the clique that was running the school. We began to wonder about what image we wanted to project: Did the Rockhurst "gentleman" look too much like a pussy? With the unfortunate "T-Shirt Incident" many guys just gave up on the school. An attempt at class unity was made in the very meaningful Midnight Mass, only to have it taken away (although later restored). With our high school career so close to an end, we began to rebel instead of trying to remedy. It took form in rebellion against the teachers, the administration, the Student Council, the Dance Committee. Nothing could satisfy everyone, and those not satisfied decided to bitch. Our great basketball team, led by the incomparable John Kafka, brought us together into a strong unit. We had the finest cheering section (as well as basketball team) in the city. And who can forget the famous marching kazzo band directed by Dr. Dan Ervin? But as the season ended on a sour note, we went back into our shell of complacency. We were out of the trophy point race and we didn't care. We lost our desire to work on school activities. We began awaiting the day that we would be out of Rockhurst.

What caused it? I shall offer my theory. We had an exuberant, talented group of guys who lacked real leadership. We did not have the group of forceful, energetic leaders that could motivate us in the right direction. What leadership we did have was divided into the various cliques, and thus we were not able to work together effectively. As we failed to unite in the first semester, we became farther apart and more complacent. The lack of unity bred dissent and the dissent gave rise to rebellion. Having a history of poor teachers, we naturally turned upon the faculty. Also, our attitude toward discipline became confused. As the administration tried to treat us more freely, we expected easier standards. When harsh measures were taken we could not take them in stride but instead were appalled and angered. This made for more rebellion and an attitude of "I just don't give a damn." We had a bunch of guys who wanted to think for themselves and who had the brains and guts to do it. We all wanted to enjoy school functions, but we did not want to put out the work it required to stage them. Rockhurst began to seem as anxious to get rid of us as we were anxious to leave.

Senior year has not really been a failure, though. We have had good times and good things have happended. We have enjoyed the most successful dances and mixers in Rockhurst history. We have revolutionized the method of setting up homeroom. Under Ken Felter's leadership, we have set up a literary magazine. We have had a very successful Ugly Man Contest, Magazine Drive, and Canned Food Drive. We have among us a golden gloves champion, an all-state basketball player, Missouri's finest debaters, and the Emperor of the Cosmos (somewhere). Now as we leave Rockhurst, we must ask ourselves what we take with us. Some happy memories, no doubt, and some bad ones, But what of the Christian ideals and principles which we have heard about for so long? Have we acquired these and will they stay with us? Only time will tell, and each of us must answer this for himself. But now we must leave and look back on a hell of a bunch of guys whom you just can't help but like. And in the months and years to come, as we get together and relive the old high school days at the Rock, we will think of the weird group and say, quoting the immortal words of the mortal Thor, "We didn't do much, but we tried, and we had a hell of a good time doing it."

Lettermen's Club

Final touch. Rick Wall and Mike Smith paste addresses on the March issue in preparation for its mailing to far distant subscribers.

All work and no play. Prep News editors Mark Kalb, Bob Noone, Mike McMullen, Mike Saunders, Ken Felter, and Lief Nelson take a standing pose while Jack Holland, Bob Wholey, and Bob Reinhardt remain working. Kurt Keppel, as usual, is missing.

One picture is worth . . . ? Photographers Tom Locke and John Klein faced their own camera in this shot of their rarely seen darkroom.

Prep News

Printers. Tim Trabon and Mike Nobrega, unsung printers of the Prep News, are shown hard at work turning out another issue.

Counciling. Newly elected Student Council President John Bauers, Secretary Dave Tremble, Vice-President Dan Ervin, and Treasurer Doug Albers preside over the first Council meeting of the second semester.

Student Council

A philosophy major from a West Coast university was in the speech room some months ago, watching as a Rockhurst debater and a former Rockhurst debater probed an untried case for loopholes. After nearly an hour, she noted in some exasperation, "It seems to me that you're not really trying to find out the truth about this question — you're just looking for a way to win a debate." John Cragen, the debate coach at Rockhurst College, made the same point in another way when he said, "All debaters are sophists. They're not searching for truth, but for the appearance of truth."

These same statements could easily have been made by many of the students — or many of the faculty-members, for that matter — at Rockhurst. To them, it must appear that debaters, with their endless concern over abstract, picayune and esoteric points, and with their constant indulgence in a technical and mysterious jargon, are not trying to accomplish anything more important than the gratification of their own egos.

Debate, and speech activities in general, have far more important purposes than Super chief. Confronted with an obviously new approach to this year's debate topic, Father James Veltrie, S.J. - moderator of the NFL - shows surprise and amusement at the mention of a debating term even he has not heard.

Talented amateurs. The NFL novice squad is shown standing in the Mr. Dulick Wing of the Nelson Art Gallery. The mustachioed freshman on the far right is the emperor of the novice squad, Mr. Glenn Mueller, S.J.

this, however. The immediate goals of the program are obvious: to develop in students the ability to deliver an intelligent address to a group of people; to give debaters the ability to think quickly and coherently and to present their thoughts in an organized, disciplined and persuasive manner; and to give participants a comprehensive knowledge of the aspects of some important national question.

Beyond these, however, — on an entirely different level from these, in fact — are the broader goals of the activity. These include the enhancement of poise and self-confidence, the broadening of the mind, and, most importantly, the enjoyment of the benefits of intensive contact and communication with other people.

Forensic activities seek to accomplish this simply by placing the student in a position in which he must expend considerable effort in these areas if he is to enjoy success and personal gratification. A student, of course, can benefit from speech only in proportion to the effort which he is willing to exert; and because of this, some profit much less than others; but the benefits are there to be derived, and the ultimate goal of the entire speech program is that they be enjoyed by as many students as wish to enjoy them.

Novice News

Members of the freshman speech and debate team have made a good showing for Rockhurst this year. Out of about 50 freshmen who went out this year, 35 stayed to compete in seven major tournaments in six categories: debate, extemporaneous speaking, original oratory, dramatic and humorous interpretation, and poetry.

Outstanding performances were turned in all year by the debate team of Krizman and Hughes as well as by the team of Shurmantine and Thedinger. The team of McFarland and DeGood also captured trophies. In the individual events, Brad Thedinger, Paul DeBacco, Steve Raab, and Brad Shurmantine made strong showings. In the outstanding category were Mike Lyon, who won humorous interpretation at a varsity meet, and Shurmantine, Thedinger, and Paul Pierron who all made strong showings in varsity meets.

Fr. Veltrie and Mr. Mueller are very pleased with the performance of the freshmen and will be counting on them to keep the Rock on top.

Drama

You probably hear a lot about the annual Fall and Spring productions, but unknown to many people at Rockhurst, the Freshmen and Sophomores have combined for three entertaining programs Mr. James White S. J.

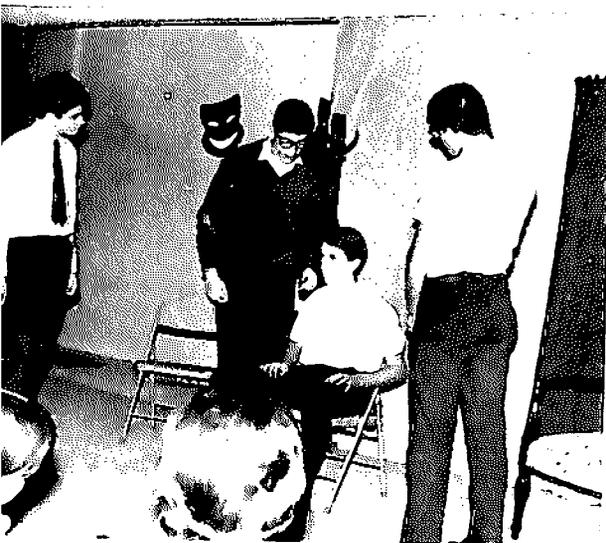

The first, a selection of skits in October, featured Mike Smith, Greg Poskin, Joe Ryan, and Jim Modica, all underclassmen. Also involved were Ronnie Coleman, Bill Cohrs, Charlie Blagg, Ken Brown, Pat Cindrich, and Paul Pierron.

In mid-December, Mr. White and Sister Mary Agnes of Loretto presented a Christmas show consisting of the play A Partridge in a Pear Tree, choral readings, and songs. The play starred Mike Smith, Joan Russinger, Donna Bortnick, Kathy Hare, and Greg Hayward. The readings featured Mark Smith, Jack Burnham, Randy Barron, and Mike Holmes. Sophomore Kathy Chiavola, who later starred with Bob Cayton in Rockhurst's production of Oklahoma! highlighted the evening with two solo Christmas hymns.

Charity was the thing in February as the Freshmen took over to present Antic Spring, featuring newcomer Kevin Wall, with the proceeds going to the Jesuit Missions.

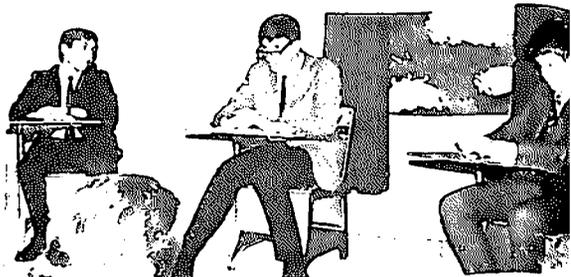

Finally, a word of thanks to Mr. White, who spent countless hours in preparation for all three Freshmen-Sophomore productions.

Kevin Wall

The Temptations. Ronnae Coleman and his guardian angel combine to resist the advances of city slicker Bill Cohrs to rob them of their hens.

Drafted. Three of Mr. Stark's "Hospital" patients, Paul Pierron, Greg Hayward, and Mike Smith, were recruited into taking their medicine on stage.

Deserving a pasting. After hanging from the ceiling by his teeth, Dennis Collins falls back to the stage, leaving his dentures dangling.

You trying to start a fight between us? Mike Smith, Greg Hayward, and Pat Cindrich surround Ken Brown in one of the Frosh-Soph skits.

Senior Guesters

Ali cat. Al Westrom is seen here acting in his two greatest roles: as Ali Hakim in Oklahoma! and as Al Westrom in The Manhattan Project.

Russian into things. Jim LeRoy determinedly advances toward Joe Kieffaber in A Game of Chess - the eighth in his string of ten shows. Jim has been seen not only here, but also at Sion and in Loose Park.

The Man and the Actor

This section of the Senior issue is devoted primarily to honoring those seniors who have devoted literally hundreds of hours for a relatively short time in the spotlight. They receive little acknowledgement; the shows are often poorly attended, there are no "Number 1" ratings to brag about, and they do not receive any recognition beyond some grudgingly given applause. Yet these men, over the course of the last several years, have put on shows both here and at other area schools, as well as in Loose Park during the summer. Their efforts deserve the special distinction of individual action shots.

Old Faithful. Whether just spouting off at the drinking fountain or suavely killing Jim LeRoy in A Game of Chess, Joe Kieffaber was equally at home.

Cowboy Bob. A relative newcomer to the lime-light, Bob Cayton has proved himself every bit as good as anyone else in the dramatics department by his work in Oklahoma.

Fighting prince. A real stage veteran, Bob Dolezal is well known both here and at Zion. This photo has him in action in You Can't Take it With You.

Old man and the Lee. Lee Allen moved from obscurity to the lead as Grandpa in You Can't Take it With You, and did an admirable job.

Oklahoma!

Placed somewhat in the position of a Roman politician charged with entertaining and feeding the mobs, Mr. Stark presented a delicious morsel of Oklahoma! For three hours the amphitheater rocked under a barrage of Hoo-Rays as Rockhurst students and their guests ate up the show. Particularly crowd pleasing was the Dream Ballet sequence featuring Mike Young, Cindy Hanlon, and Ron Sextro along with the bouncing boys' dancing chorus. Also outstanding were all of the leads: Beth Andrisevic, Tom Locke, Denny Maygers, Maurcen Davis or Gail Gray (depending on which night you saw the show), Kevin Wall, and Susan Hill. Special praise goes to Bob Cayton as Curly, Kathy Chiavola as Laurey, and to Al Westrom as Ali Hakim for three of the most memorable performances since Mike Pace's Sakini in Teahouse of the August Moon. These three not only acted, but sang to beat the band (which, by the way, was excellent at times). Back up all of this with a tuneful mixed singing chorus and good choreography, and you have show stopping numbers such as the title song "Oklahoma" and the closing "People Will Say We're in Love."

There were only two major disappointments in the show. First, the unduly long "Many a New Day" dance number; it was well done, but overdone. Second was the ambush of sheriff Lee Allen by the bad guys in black on the day of final dress rehearsal. But these setbacks were lost in the face of an overall excellent show.

Jim Leroy

How square. Denny Maygers, Gail Gray, Bob Cayton and a cast of thousands display fine form in the "Farmers and Cowboys" dance number.

What do you think of this slingshot? Ali Hakim, a garter snake in his own right, offers Aunt Eller a fancy, imported thigh holder.

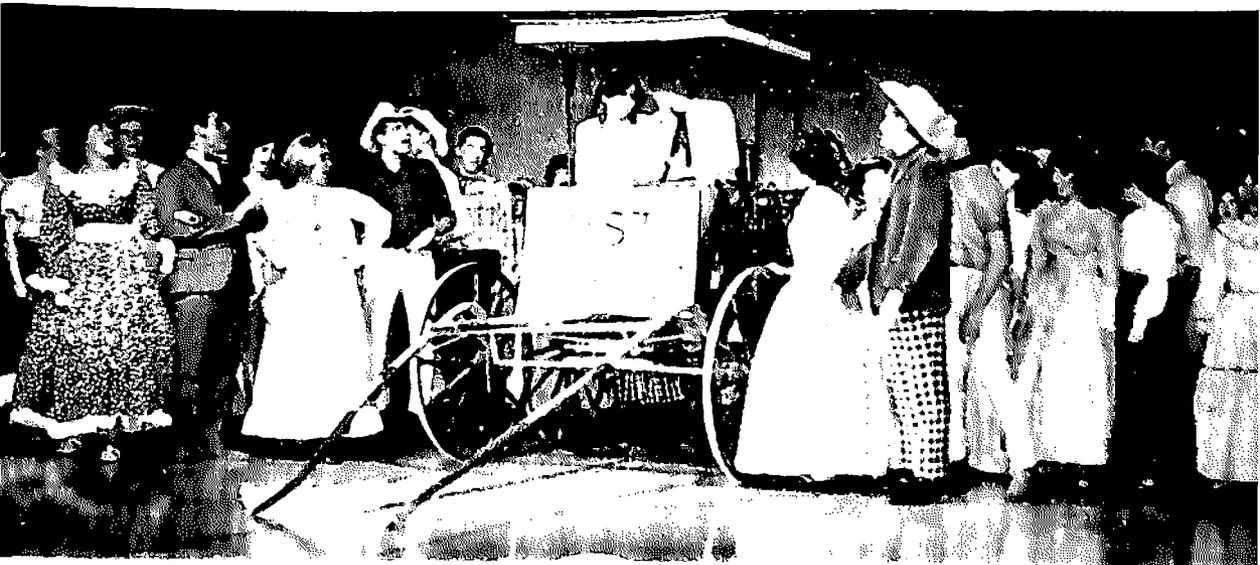

Up a Tree. Curly goes out on a limb in losing his head over Laurey in the play Oklahoma! In real life, the two people seen making out in the picture are, front to back, Bob Cayton and Kathy Chivola.

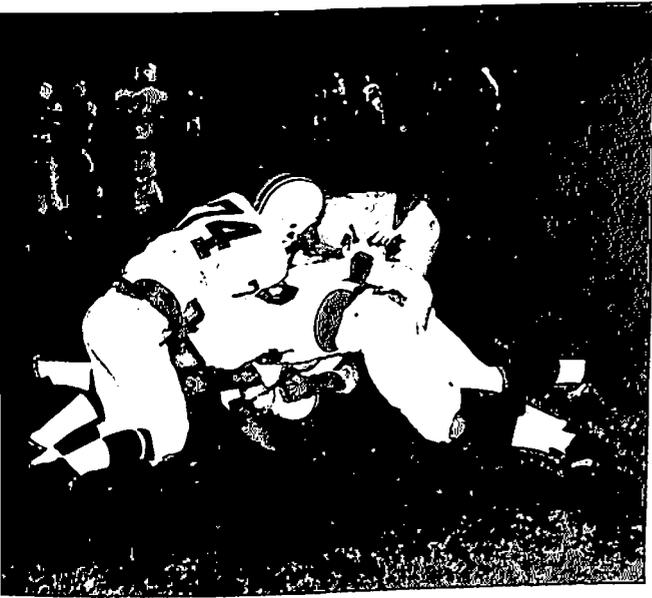

Goin' my way? Mike Young and Cindy Hanlon show off their particular talents to open up the Dream Ballet.

Wagon their tails. Parking in an obviously popular spot, newlyweds Bob Cayton and Kathy Chivola enjoy each other's company along with the rest of the company of Oklahoma!

Sports

Football

Pre-clashes. Eager football linemen work out in some pre-game hitting before the start of the Blue-White Scrimmage.

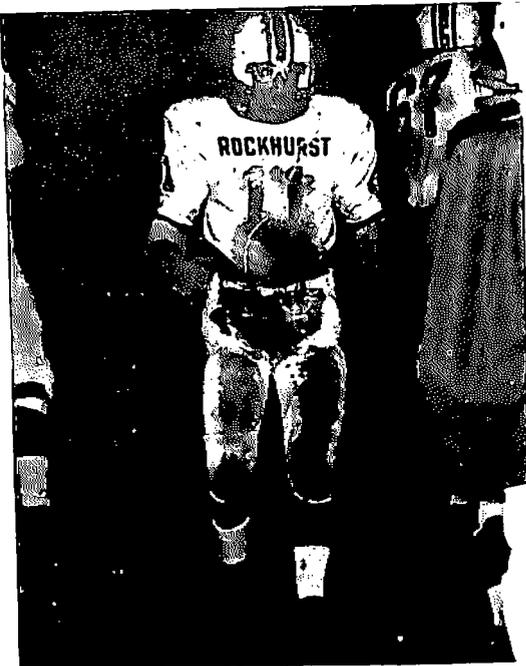

The tires. The final days of August saw the varsity football team practicing twice a day, trying to get in shape for one of the toughest schedules in the Kansas City Area.

 Second Row: T. Mullin, J. King, M. Hodes, R. Pribyl, Jr. Bauers, T. Nied, P. Santoro, F. Martin, D. Matthews, P. McMahon, J. DiGiovanna, T. Dobel
 Third row: B. Schoonover, V. Nowak,

Jr. Bauers, D. Hanover, B. Poland, K. Disser, R. Nelthorpe, M. Stockbauer, M. Hayes, B. Judy, K. Fahey, C. Whitakes, M. McGuire
 Missing J. Redding,

Co-Captain. Tom Nied, a two year letterman who started at quarterback Junior year, switched to halfback for the '67 season. Besides being outstanding on offense, he also proved vital as a defensive halfback.

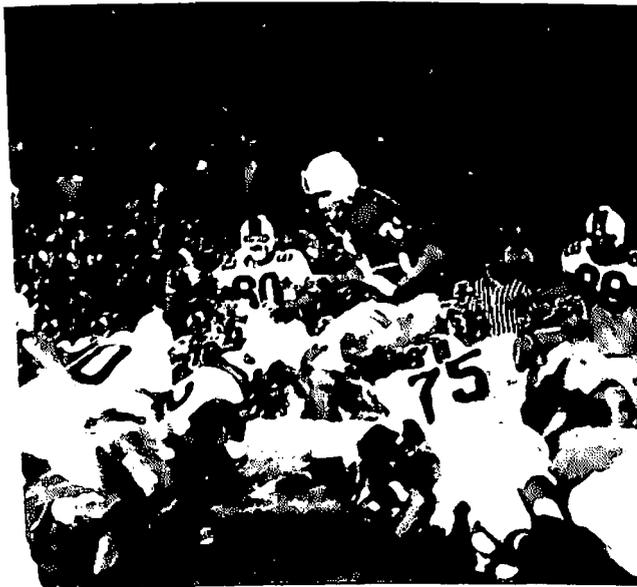

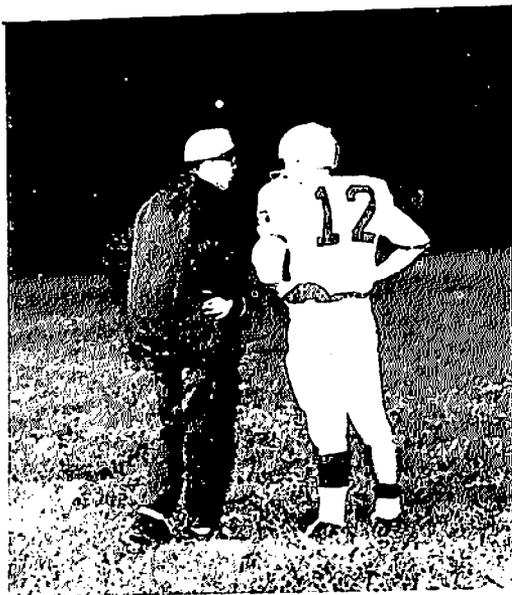

The chase. Tim "Moon" Mullin, the Hawklets middle linebacker for the '67 football season, pursues an opponent halfback in hopes of another unassisted tackle.

Senior watch. Frank Martin, Mark Stockbauer, Tom Nied and Pete Santoro take a breather after a offensive drive.

Churn it up. Pete Santoro digs for extra yardage in the Ward game. The game, which Ward won 24-19, was the turning point of the '67 season. Up to that game Rockhurst was undefeated and highly rated; the Hawklets were destined to win only two more games the whole season.

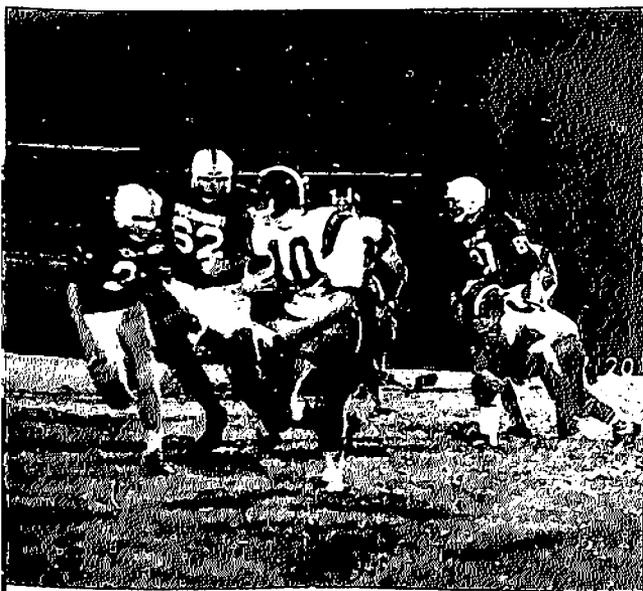

Bukaty Award winner. Pat McMahon, the starting quarterback for this year's varsity football team, discusses the game plan with Coach Davis during a time out.

All alone. Senior fullback Joe DiGiovanna heads for the goal line pursued only by the referee, who is out of position to make the tackle.

Hot pursuit. Pete Santoro and Kelly Dissler close in on a William Chrisman back in an attempt to put an end to their offensive drive.

Pound for pound. Dick Mathews, senior halfback, was the smallest man on the squad; but by the end of the season he was the starting left halfback. Here Dick slashes through the line for an important gain in the North Kansas City game.

Soccer

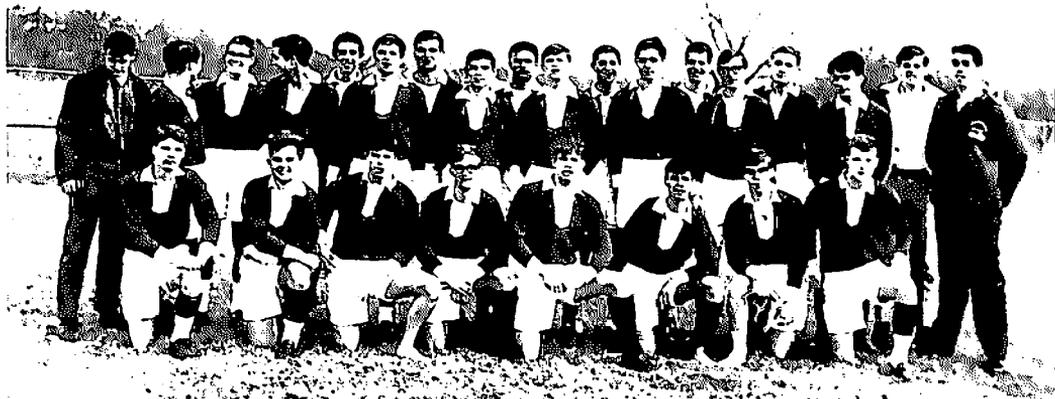

Top of the Rock. Ron Pribyl displays the skill that made him a standout for two years on the varsity soccer team, which he captained this year.

Football?? What is football to the rest of the world is soccer to Americans. Rockhurst High was the first school to pioneer this sport in the K.C. area.

1967-'68 Varsity Soccer team: F. Row J. Cecil, K. Seufert, S. Loftus, J. Mulroy, M. Young, G. Bono, L. Running, F. Martin. M. Row B. Fitzpatrick, R. Pribyl, J. Knopke, R. Schneider, J. Jimenez, T. Schanabel, B. Pierron, D. Ward, B. Kalahurka, Coach McCabe. B. Row D. Schilling, B. Winski, J. Bauers, B. Schoonover, D. Albers, B. Bungarner, P. Gorton, D. Dreyer.

Perfect Form. Senior Don Schilling shows the form that enabled him to gain a starting position in his first year at soccer.

Coach's corner. Mr. McCabe S.J., goes over so last minute strategy with this year's vars soccer team. The fine record enjoyed by a team is a credit to Mr. McCabe's coaching ability.

Soft touch. Frank Martin displays the footwork that was used to out-manuever many an opponent during this winter's soccer season.

On the ball. Pete Gorton outruns a Miego Stag in an attempt to get the ball downfield for a possible score.

John Kafka. Goose is seen displaying some of the moves that made him the finest basketball player in the Kansas City area. Perhaps the hardest working basketball player ever to attend Rockhurst, John was rewarded for his efforts by being named to the All-Metro team and by being the only Kansas City player to make the All-State team. John had to be considered the man chiefly responsible for the Hawklets fine season; but besides his own individual play, it was John's teamwork and leadership that brought Rockhurst to a 20-5 record.

Ward country??? In the Armory, Pat Brosnahan hits two more points that helped drive Ward out of Kansas after they had already been driven out of Missouri.

Can't miss. Pete Kovich lays up another two points against Lee's Summit on their home court. Although Pete was not a starter, he turned in clutch performances in the regional games, and was the primary reason the cold Hawklets won the first two games against Belton and Center.

Three on two. Bill O'Connor prepares to launch a shot against Shawnee Mission South while John Kafka furnishes a good screen. Both John and Bill received All-Metro honors.

Goose flies. In the finals of the Lee's Summit regionals John Kafka gets off a short jumper while being double teamed by Ruskin.

Traffic jam. Senior guard Pete Santoro drives through three Shawnee Mission South players on the way to another score. Drives like this plus deadly outside shooting led Pete to All-Scout Honors.

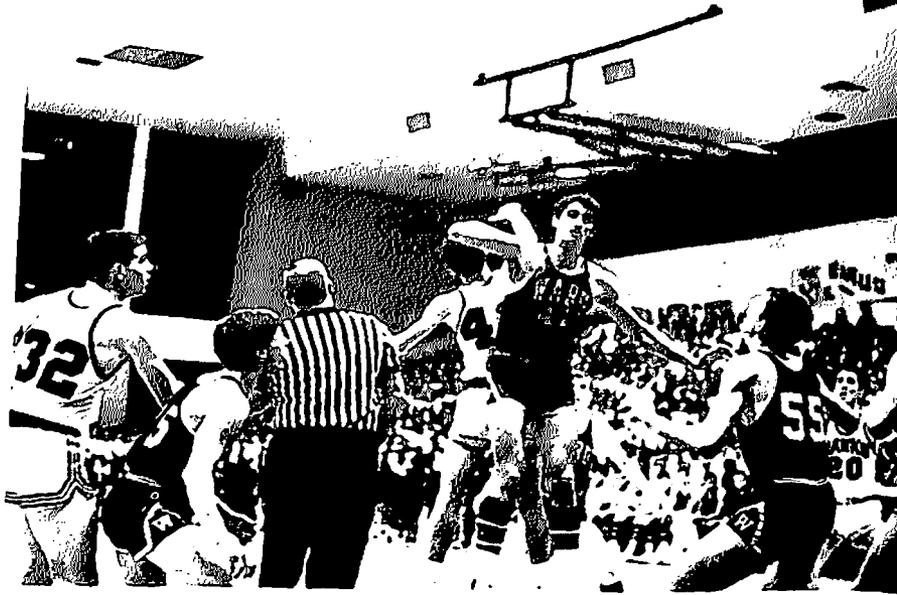

Don't forget the dunk rule!! Jim Williams uses all of his 6-4 frame to score an easy layup and two points in the early win over Washington. Jim's hard work brought him from not even making the team as a freshman to a Varsity letter as a Senior.

Fall back baby. Senior Pat McMahon arches a fall away shot against De La Salle. Although Pat was not a starter, he was elected co-captain by this fellow teammates.

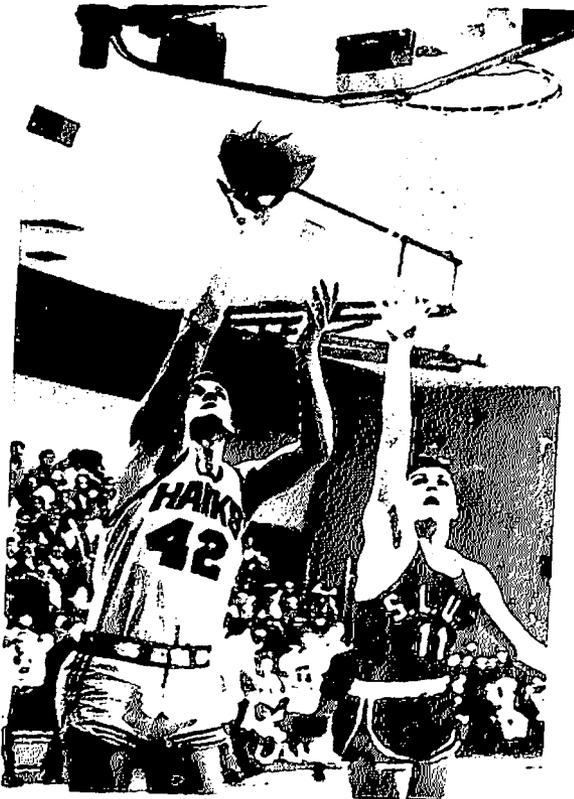

Certainty plus. Pat Brosnahan shows a look of determination as he eyes the basket for a position to lay in the ball.

Soni soars. Steve Fasone uses his jumping ability to its best advantage as he plays in an important basket against a S.L.U.H. defender.

Shoot the breeze. Steve Fasone goes up for a jump ball against Ward's Nick Kanatzer. This, the first Ward game, was one of the true highlights of the 67-68 basketball season. Up to that point Ward had been undefeated and rated number one in the city. There was talk about the Cyclones being unbeatable; but the talk soon ended when the Hawklets overran the Cyclones in the first half. The Rockhurst second string saw a great deal of action in the second half, as Rockhurst went on to win 62-54.

Track

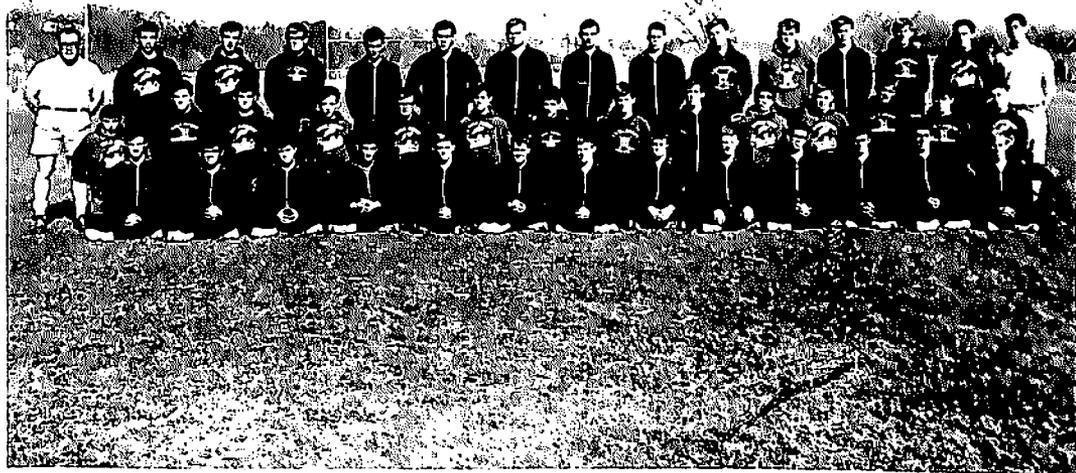

Blood and guts. Senior Bill Poland, co-captain of the track team, puts on that little extra steam, which he was able to develop after many hours of post-practice running.

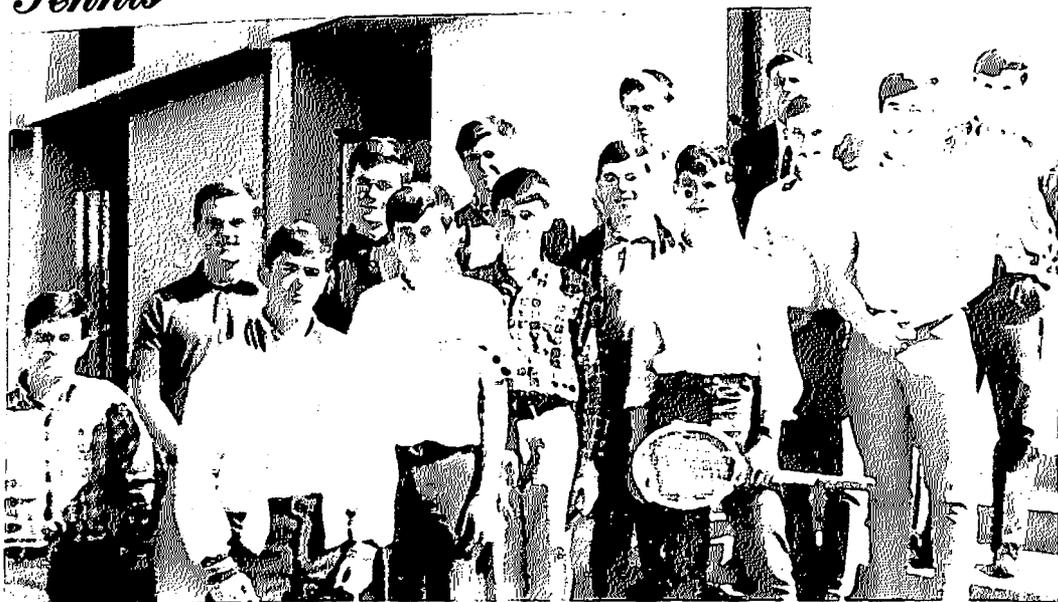

Up, up and away. Robin Marx, junior letterman, shows high-flying form as he attempts to vault the 13-foot height.

Tennis
